Notes:

1. Tempest V JN768 is an exciting addition to the UK register. It appears that it is a rebuild using items from the Ted Sinclair collection.
2. Both Provost WV562 and Pioneer XL703 have moved into the Michael Beetham Conservation Centre to be repainted in Omani markings prior to being placed back on display.
3. Whirlwind HAR10 XJ729 is a pleasant surprise as it has been seen flying recently - the only one of its type flying in the UK in military markings.
4. Tornado ZA395 was painted in special marks to commemorate 99 years of No 12 Squadron. The squadron was disbanded, along with No 617 Squadron, at Lossiemouth on 28 March 2014.
5. As widely reported, the RAF withdrew its last TriStars during March with the last flight being made by ZD951, which touched down at Bruntingthorpe at 18:45 on 25 March 2014. 216 Squadron itself held its disbandment parade at Brize Norton on 20 March 2014.
6. Tucano ZF244 is to be the display aircraft for 2014, carrying special markings, with poppies on the nose and the legend 'Lest We Forget' on the fuselage.
7. Puma ZJ955 wears a matt black colour scheme, the code P and RAF South East Asia Command blue roundels to commemorate the 95th anniversary of No 230 Squadron and 70 years since the loss of its Sunderland JM673/P 'Black Peter' in November 1944.
8. Typhoon ZK343 is the 2014 Typhoon display aircraft and was first seen outside with special markings on 31 March 2014. It has a black tail with three large red crosses on it, while the canards are also black with '29' and 'XXX' on them.
